

In Loving Memory

Jacqueline M. Buedel

With deep humility and gratitude for the many gifts Jackie shared with all of us, especially with our graduates, we hope to honor her memory and her cherished good work at Caroline Center in two meaningful ways.

Our request to have Somerset Street, where Jackie worked each day, ceremonially named “Jackie Buedel Way” has been granted by the City of Baltimore. A new, additional street sign will be installed later in the summer. We will send an email to you, friends and donors, and we will post the day and time of the installation on our website. We hope you will be able to join us for the installation as we honor Jackie’s commitment to Caroline Center.

Additionally, every woman entering the Caroline Center program this coming fall – and every woman who enrolls in Caroline Center for all the years to come – will be fully supported throughout her career and academic journey and as a Caroline Center member for life – through the newly named Jacqueline M. Buedel Academic and Career Advancement Program. As Caroline Center’s first director of academic and career advancement, Jackie’s love of Caroline Center as an SSND-sponsored work and even greater love of Caroline Center’s courageous and accomplished graduates became the hallmark of what academic and career advancement should be.

Contributions to Caroline Center in Jackie’s memory will help support the educational mission of Caroline Center and, in particular, the continued advancement of our graduates so that each woman can claim for herself what every woman so richly deserves – meaningful and rewarding work, opportunities to create a better life, and a voice in the world that is valued.
